

Contents

List of illustrations	xi
Foreword	xiii
ADMIRAL SIR JONATHON BAND KCB ADC
Preface to the second edition	xv
List of abbreviations	xix
1 Seapower in a globalised world: two tendencies	1
1.1 Introduction: seapower and globalisation	1
1.2 The post-modern navy	6
1.3 The modern navy	14
1.4 Modern/post-modern compromises	17
2 Defining seapower	20
2.1 Introduction	20
2.2 The sea: four historic attributes	23
2.3 Explaining the secret of maritime success	33
2.4 Seapower: qualifications and limitations	37
3 Who said what and why it matters	39
3.1 The value of theory in maritime operations	39
3.2 On types of theory	41
3.3 The early development of theory	47
3.4 Mahan and the bluewater tendency	51
3.5 Corbett and the maritime tradition	56
3.6 Alternative visions in maritime strategy	68
3.7 Operational art and modern maritime theory	74
3.8 Present and future challenges	81
4 The constituents of seapower	83
4.1 Introduction	83
4.2 Identifying the constituents of seapower	84
4.3 Maritime people, society and government	84

4.4	Maritime geography	88
4.5	Resources	96
4.6	A maritime economy	100
4.7	Seapower by other means	106
4.8	Doctrine	112
5	Navies and technology	114
5.1	Introduction	114
5.2	Classifying navies	114
5.3	Classifying navies: estimating relative effectiveness	117
5.4	Navies and technology: an introduction	121
5.5	Platforms	121
5.6	Systems, weapons and sensors	127
5.7	An information revolution?	129
5.8	The challenge of transformational technology	134
5.9	A strategy for innovation	136
5.10	Navies and technology: summary and conclusions	143
6	Command of the sea and sea control	145
6.1	Evolution of a traditional concept	145
6.2	Limits and qualifications	146
6.3	Pursuing command in moderation	150
6.4	Command of the sea yields to sea control	151
6.5	Sea denial	153
6.6	Contemporary angles	155
7	Securing command of the sea	157
7.1	Securing command of the sea: the operational approach	157
7.2	Decisive battle	158
7.3	Forms and styles of decisive battle	163
7.4	How to achieve a decisive victory	167
7.5	Modern forms and concepts of battle	170
7.6	Operational alternatives to battle	172
7.7	The fleet-in-being approach	173
7.8	The fleet blockade	177
8	Exploiting command of the sea	184
8.1	Maritime power projection: definitions	184
8.2	Maritime power projection: aims	186
8.3	Amphibious operations	189
8.4	Operational manoeuvre from the sea	197
8.5	Sea-based strategic missile attack of the shore	202
8.6	Defence against maritime power projection	204
8.7	The attack of maritime communications	211
8.8	The defence of maritime communications	215

9 Expeditionary operations	221
9.1 Origins and background	221
9.2 Definitions	222
9.3 Expeditionary operations: the political dimension	224
9.4 Expeditionary operations: the urban dimension	226
9.5 General demands on the military	226
9.6 Expeditionary operations: the maritime dimension	229
9.7 Staging a sea-based expedition: the maritime requirements	233
9.8 Sea-basing	248
9.9 Conclusions	249
9.10 A humanitarian postscript	250
10 Naval diplomacy	253
10.1 Coverage of naval diplomacy in the literature: who said what?	253
10.2 The diplomatic value of naval power	255
10.3 The range and extent of naval diplomacy	257
10.4 Naval presence	258
10.5 Naval picture building	264
10.6 Naval coercion	265
10.7 Coalition building	275
10.8 Naval diplomacy: implications for strategy makers	280
11 Maintaining good order at sea	286
11.1 Introduction: good order and maritime security	286
11.2 The sea as a resource	287
11.3 The sea as a means of transportation	290
11.4 The sea as a means of gaining and exchanging information	299
11.5 The sea as an area of dominion	301
11.6 The sea as an environment	303
11.7 The need for good order at sea	306
11.8 Increasing maritime awareness	306
11.9 Developing maritime policy	309
11.10 Developing integrated maritime governance	310
11.11 Policy implementation: the navy-coast guard spectrum	314
11.12 Good order at sea: implications for navies	319
12 Theory and practice: the Asia-Pacific region: a case study	322
12.1 Introduction	322
12.2 The maritime context	322
12.3 Strategic thinking	325
12.4 Mission issues arising	330
12.5 Asia-Pacific conclusions	345

13 Conclusions?	350
13.1 The relative importance of the sea and seapower will tend to rise in the twenty-first century	350
13.2 Attitudes to the sea will change	351
13.3 There will be a continuing focus on the littoral	355
13.4 The range and diversity of naval tasks is likely to increase	356
13.5 Navies have some thinking to do	357
Notes	359
Bibliography	381
Index	400