stimulus so necessary to undertaking and completing an effort of this kind. Captain Mack A. Thomas, USN, Deputy to the President and Chief of Staff, assured the financial support required to produce this book.

The Dean of Academics, William M. Calhoun, enthusiastically championed opportunities for faculty research and publication. Dr. William R. Turrotte, Chairman of the National Security Decision Making Department, has a gift for asking hard questions and rejecting easy answers. Without the zeal for curriculum development and scholarly endeavor, we would not have benefited from the academic environment that fosters teaching and research excellence. His Executive Assistant, Professor Kevin Kelley, carried the heavy burden of departmental administration, leaving the faculty free to think, research, and write. Chris Anderson, the Department's Academic Coordinator, deserves special mention for her superb administrative support and indispensable coordination. We are also grateful to Genevieve Pietragiak and Jane Lutz for their prompt and cheerful assistance in handling secretarial services for the department.
